Getting their pictures taken was just one of the many opportunities to get together for several Didsbury and district young people who have returned to their homes after attending Farm Young People's Week on the University of Alberta campus from June 9 to 17.

As shown above, thanks to their individual sponsors, they were out to see the university inside and out and had paused briefly in front of the Arts building to smile for the birds.

The program, sponsored by the department of extension, in cooperation with the faculty of agriculture, schools of household economics and nursing at the University of Alberta, was an instructive and pleasing one. The young people were treated to a variety of farm subjects, interspersed with recreational and social activities.

For the boys there was livestock and grain judging, a study of weeds and soils, and a look at the latest in farm tillage machinery. For the girls there was instruction in home nursing, fashion and dress, and color and design in the home. Seminars and lectures by leading agricultural authorities rounded out the week's activities which closed with the 35th annual conference and banquet at which scholarships and prizes were awarded.

Farm Young People's Week, an annual event on the university campus, is continuing to grow in size and popularity. This summer 150 young people from many points in the province were in attendance. The course was organized originally to meet various requests from organizations interested in the young people of Alberta.

The district received another severe blow Monday afternoon when one of the most severe hail storms in years went through an area of about four miles in width, cutting a mean swath in its wake. Gardens and crops suffered badly.

Most farms suffered broken windows and other destruction that usually follows a hail storm. It depends on the weatherman now whether crops and gardens will come back.

Work on straightening of the road, east from the hospital hill has been progressing well during the past couple of weeks and with favorable weather should be completed within the month.

The new road, with the odd gradual curve, cuts straight through from the top of the hospital hill and meets the old road a few hundred yards west of the main Calgary-Edmonton highway.

Word received here early this week suggests that a 60-ft. bridge will arrive next week to span the "low-spot" and a provincial government bridging crew are expected at the same time. All other work is being done by the Municipal District of Mountain View.

Notes From D.A.

RUGH McPHAIL

I have had several cases of spruce trees being injured by the spruce mite. The following article describes this pest and gives its life history.

The spruce mite is a pest of major importance throughout Canada. Its food plants include spruce, balsam, cedar, hemlock and certain species of pine. Trees in poor growing condition from transplanting, unfavorable soil or crowded conditions, are usually the most seriously infested. Dry seasons favor the development of the spruce mite, while extremely high temperatures will cause heavy mortality and dashing rains will wash considerable numbers from the twigs and needles.

Infested trees are characterized by a dingy yellow or rusty brown appearance of the foliage and the presence of a fine network of webbing over the twigs and needles. A close examination will reveal very small dark green or brown objects moving over the needles and through the webbing. When an infestation is severe, the needles dry and drop off, those on the lower branches going first. Small trees and nursery stock may be killed in one year and mature trees in three or four years.

The mite overwinters in the egg stage. The eggs are deposited on the twigs, at the base of the needles or under loose bud scales and hatch during the first week in May. After hatching from the egg, the mite passes through nymphal stages before becoming an adult. In general, one generation will be completed in thirty days in the spring or fall, but in hot weather the time may be reduced to 15 days.

Thus, several generations occur in rapid succession during the summer until September, when the winter eggs are laid. The adult female lives about 30 days and lays from 25 to 50 eggs. The nymphs and adults spin conspicuous webbing which serves as an excellent protection for all stages against weather and natural enemies.

The adult mite crawls easily from one part of the tree to another, but the chief means of dispersion from tree to tree lies in wind currents which may carry all stages of the mites for considerable distances. Distribution of nursery or other stocks is an important avenue through which infestations may be spread from one locality to another.

The eggs when first laid are pale yellow in color but gradually change to reddish brown. When first hatched, the young mites are bright pink, changing to dark green and finally to blackish brown in the mature adults.

Next week I shall have an article on the control measures.

GRADUATION TIME . . .

Congratulations go out this month to all those eager young graduates who are bringing one phase of their life to a successful close and starting on a new one, a greater one. This is just another milestone in the life of these young aspirants, which has also been passed by their parents.

Up to the time of graduation most parents look on their offspring as youngsters. The hour of graduation makes a great change, which sometimes seems too sudden. Probably this is the explanation for moist eyes and dry throats at this all-important time.

It is a time when parental counsel may help or hinder. It is a time when diplomacy on both sides could make things much easier. However, youngsters these days, as in the past, have a streak of independence, wanting help from no one. Unfortunately experience is the only way they will learn that they cannot "go it alone."

Self confidence and true independence cannot be achieved until they have some faith and confidence in others — especially those who love them.

These young people at times do not realize how fortunate they are to live in a country where they are free to enter any profession, business or trade.

Advice comes cheap to these young people, sometimes from the right source, sometimes not. We, here, are fully conscious of the value and importance of youthful thinking. We welcome advice from youth as well as maturity.

The point, as we see it, seems to be that we, and they, can profit by knowing and understanding each other.

Through The Study Window

(Rev. C. C. Armstrong)

Goldsmith, author of the "Vicar of Wakefield," was very much concerned about the indiscriminate use of capital punishment in the 18th century. Harsh penalties did not prevent numerous crimes. He wrote: "When by indiscriminate penal laws the nation beholds the same punishment affixed to dissimilar degrees of guilt, the people are led to lose all sense of distinction in the crime, and this distinction is the bulwark of all morality."

In recent times the use of capital punishment has caused a great deal of discussion. In England a man named Bentley was hanged, in spite of public demonstrations and parliamentary debate as the man to be held accountable for the murder of a policeman, although the actual killing was done by a young man who was too young to be held fully responsible, and also too young to be executed.

In the States, the two Rosenbergs were executed for betraying their country. Numerous trials, postponements and appeals resulted in enormous emotional tension that increased with each delay and left the issue in doubt up to the very time of their death.

Were the accused guilty, as charged? The protracted legal struggle increased the uncertainty of their guilt and the questionable (?) method of punishment. There ought to be no uncertainty as to the enormity of the crime committed, and many would feel that the death penalty was called for; with no uncertainty about the penalty. Nevertheless the entire proceedings fixed attention on the method of punishment rather than on the necessity of a steadfast loyalty to one's country. It is a miserable episode throughout.

Some months ago the United Church, at its general council, made provision for a commission to study the contentious issue of capital punishment. At this point in time it is necessary to deal firmly with murder, treason and all other manifestations of human sinfulness. What the law did not prevent it has not clearly forestalled. It is more imperative than ever to assert that the most effective safeguard is not the righteousness that is of the law but the redemption that is of Christ. He himself was executed, along with two thieves. It was society's method of dealing with crime, but it was also God's way of dealing with sin. The final answer to murder and treason is not the rope nor the chair, but the Cross and Throne of Him who is at once Severe and Good.

Made of aluminum, they are assembled with 45,000 aluminum rivets. Reputed to be the safest vessel ever built, the liner contains more aluminum than any other single structure on land or sea. Agricultural SERVICE BOARD NOTES

W.K. Snyder, Field Supervisor

Weed Spraying with 2,4-D: The spraying season is with us again, a little later than usual. Now is a good time to get your equipment ready. Clean and flush out the tank hose lines, boom. Go over all hose clamps and connections and repair or replace doubtful parts. Make sure all nozzles work properly. Adjust the booms for height. This is usually 2 to 2½ feet above the ground. A little time spent now in carefully checking over every point is good business.

Most of the newer type sprayers are now equipped with a bi-pass arrangement which constantly returns part of the fluid to the supply tank. This ensures adequate and constant mixing of the solution. This is a very important part of any sprayer. Some of the older sprayers had no provision for bi-pass. If this is your case, it can easily be put on at small cost.

I will be glad to give you a diagram suitable to use on your particular kind of sprayer. Temperature has a distinct bearing on the effectiveness of 2,4-D. Seventy degrees or higher is ideal for best results. If below 60 it may be advisable to slightly increase the application rate of acid per acre.

Variety of weed, stage of growth and variety of crop to be sprayed all need to be taken into consideration before determining an application rate. If you are not sure about every detail and will get in touch with me, I will give you whatever advice I can.

There is evidence that sweet clover weevils are at work in some fields. These insects take bites out of the edges of the leaves of the sweet clover plants and if left unmolested they could completely defoliate them. These weevils can be controlled with Aldrin, a very poisonous material which can be applied with the weed sprayer. Contact me for directions on how to use it. We also have the Aldrin spray at the Municipal office.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

In Christian Science churches on Sunday, the title of the Lesson Sermon is "God". It brings out the fact that our loving Father is reflected in all his children, in his own image and likeness. There are some of the passages, from the Bible. "Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit. And there are diversities of operations, but it is the same God which worketh all in all." (1 Cor. 12: 4-6) And from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Love giveth to the least spiritual idea might, immortality and goodness, which shine through all as the blossom shines through the bud. All the varied expressions of God reflect health, holiness, immortality — infinite Life, Truth and Love. (518: 19-23).

"A loan from the bank saved my barn!"

"I HAD a big investment in my farm and I had to protect it. For one thing the barn needed a lot of fixing. I found I could get a Farm Improvement Loan that would cover all the repairs at terms I could afford. So the barn's fixed and my livestock, machinery and crops are protected. I actually saved money by repaying the barn right away."

FARM IMPROVEMENT LOANS

CANADA PREPARES TO DEAL WITH DISASTER

HOW TO BUILD A BLAST SHELTER

Mother earth being man's age-old hideout against peril, scientists recommend its use, again, as protection against disaster, particularly against such hazards as tornadoes, and in this modern age, the atomic bomb. Civil defence authorities in Canada, in publicizing methods of dealing with disaster and in recommending the construction of shelters, admit that no known cover will protect against a direct hit with a powerful explosive, but they do insist that many lives will be saved under air attack, if people take cover in adequately-reinforced underground shelters.

Many leading concerns throughout Canada have taken steps to strengthen their factories and office buildings for use as shelters, particularly those portions of structures below ground level and shielded by substantial superstructures.

Details on the construction of simple home shelters are contained in publications issued by the Department of National Health and Welfare. Engineers, architects and building contractors will be interested in the manual "Technical Guidance on the Construction of Air Raid Shelter" prepared for the federal Civil Defence Co-ordinator by the professional staff of the Department of Public Works. The average home owner and small merchant will find much useful information in the general handbook, "Personal Protection Under Atomic Attack."

BASEMENT SHELTERS

In considering reinforcing a basement as shelter, authorities advise study of the likely angle from which an attack could come, before work is begun on strengthening the structure.

How to calculate these probabilities is explained in the manual. Instructions also cover the erection of a framework of stout wooden beams, with supporting struts, provision of adequate emergency exits and the outfitting of the shelter with tools and supplies which may be urgently needed if occupants of the shelter are unable to get out immediately after a raid.

CONTENTS OF SHELTER

Among other items, it is recommended that shelters be provided with such things as bottles of drinking water, flashlight, portable radio, if possible, some tinned food, blankets, a first aid kit, to include bandages, antiseptic, burn ointment, etc., changes of clothing, detergents or soap, simple tools, such as wrecking bar and hammer, and water and sand to extinguish fires. Many of these items, it is noted, may be put in containers and kept in shelters at all times — not just rushed there at the last minute.

OUTSIDE SHELTERS

Experience under air attack in the World Wars proved that safe shelters could be constructed outside buildings where, among other advantages, there was less likelihood of them being buried under debris. "Personal Protection Under Atomic Attack" gives detailed requirements for outside shelters, recommending that walls be built of reinforced concrete six inches thick or with timber two inches thick and well supported by square frames about one foot apart, much in the manner of an excavation for a sewer in mud or bad ground.

The shelter should be approximately 70 inches high and the roof constructed of reinforced concrete 12 inches thick or of timber similar to the walls. The soil excavated from the hole should then be packed around the walls and over the roof — at least three feet thick. As with the basement type, authorities remind Canadians that outside shelters must be provided with ample emergency exits on all sides, to facilitate escape should debris from collapsing buildings cover them. In fact, the recommended procedure is to build a blast wall, approximately two to three feet in front of windows and doors, covering the intervening spaces with boards to prevent debris choking these exits.

All that the prudent will want in the way of guidance to the construction of safe places for their families will be found in the government handbooks, which are available through civil defence services everywhere.

WEDDINGS

SHERICK — IRWIN

The Evangelical U.B. Church was the scene of a lovely wedding on Wednesday, June 24, when Verla Joan Irwin, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Irwin of Didsbury, became the bride of Kenneth Norman Sherick, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Verdo H. Sherick of Carstairs.

Baskets of lilacs and spring flowers decorated the church and the candle-lit altar for the double-ring ceremony conducted by Rev. A. J. Grams, assisted by Rev. Ray Shantz.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length white nylon gown designed with a molded lace bodice, net yoke, laceilly sleeves and a full cape-line style skirt of net over taffeta. A jeweled coronet held in place her finger-tip length veil of illusion net and lace, and she carried a bouquet of red roses. Her only jewelry was a double strand of pearls.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Leonard Pollock, sister of the groom, gowning in pale green taffeta with a bustle-back skirt and matching jacket. Bridesmaids were Miss Bonny Hallman, who wore mauve taffeta with broadened bodice, full net overskirt and matching jacket, and Miss Patricia Leavens, who wore yellow taffeta with fitted bodice and net yoke and full skirt.

They wore matching pearl studded coronets and gloves, and carried colonial bouquets of mauve, yellow and white carnations respectively.

Mr. Ormond Sherick attended his brother as groomsmen, and the guests were ushered by Mr. Edward Irwin and Mr. Donald Irwin, brothers of the bride.

The wedding music was played by Miss Helen Swain, and soloist Mr. W. C. Kirk sang "I'll Walk Beside You" during the ceremony and "Because" during the signing of the register.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Irwin wore a dress of navy blue crepe with pink accents, and corsage of pink carnations and red Sweetheart roses. The groom's mother wore a gown of slate grey with deep mauve accessories and her corsage was of pink carnations and Sweetheart roses.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the church basement, which was tastefully decorated with streamers and bells. The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake.

Telegrams were read by Mrs. E. Cogswell and special numbers were rendered by Joyce and Mildred Luft and Mr. Kirk.

Out-of-town guests included relatives and friends from Calgary, High River, Beiseker, Three Hills, Swallow, Red Deer, Ponoka, Olds, Crossfield and Edmonton.

For travelling the bride and groom chose matching suits of blue grey. The bride's accessories were pink and she wore a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

On their return from a honeymoon trip to points in the U.S., B.C., Jasper and Edmonton, Mr. and Mrs. Sherick will reside on their farm west of Carstairs.

SPRINGSIDE NOTES

(From Our Own Correspondent)

The Springside Ladies' Group held their July meeting at the home of Mrs. George Innes with an attendance of eleven members and two visitors. The meeting was held one week early, because of the fact that July is the month of stampedes and picnics.

Plans were discussed for the annual school picnic to be held the last day of school. Pictures of the group were taken by the hostess during the afternoon, with her lovely flower garden as a background. The tea raffle was won by Mrs. B. Nelson.

The meeting adjourned after a most delicious lunch was served by the hostess. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Vern Wrigglesworth on the first Tuesday in August.

PUBLIC UNFAIR TO HER MAJESTY
The public demands upon the Queen and the members of the Royal family are unfair and unbearable.

Privacy is the first essential of family life. The Queen, her husband and their children have a right to lead their own lives in their own way.

State duties, official functions and public appearances combine to make a burden of work and strain that would break the health of most of the Queen's subjects.

In the afterglow of the Coronation the governments of the Commonwealth and Empire should make it possible for the Royal family to live as normally as the affairs of state may permit.

In Her Majesty's richest realms those who are called workers get a more comfortable livelihood, including automobiles than Kings and Queens knew a century ago, in return for attendance at places of employment for less than one-quarter of the worker's time.

Surely royalty has a right to an eighty-hour week.

Two planes taking part in "Operation Budworm," a forest spraying project involving two Canadian governments, several large pulp and paper companies, 600 men and 79 planes, fly over New Brunswick's spruce forest. The $9,000,000 effort to kill the budworm, usually a harmless parasite, who in recent years has appeared in epidemic numbers and threatens to turn the area into a wasteland of trees.

The Finger Points to the location of the Anterior Transverse Arch. When this Arch weakens, the tiny bones are depressed; uneven pressure is produced, and the uneven distribution of the person's weight causes a burning sensation, callouses, tender spots, contracted toes, and severe cramp-like pain. The foot widens and spreads over the shoes, the small toe and great toe joints become inflamed and enlarged—bodily fatigue and nervousness result.
